HERMANVILLE

OLAF MARION AKRE DIES.

A large and sympathetic congregation gathered Sunday afternoon at the Community M. E. church of Hermansville to pay their respects to Olaf Marion Akre, deceased. Rev. L. F. Merrill officiated at the services.

"In the Hour of Trial" was sung by Mrs. Lettie Bultman, Robert Louis Stevenson's "Requiem" was sung by the pastor. The Modern Woodmen of America acted as pallbearers. The message by the pastor, which was based on the text, "Quit you like men, be strong," I Cor. 16:13, was a challenge in behalf of Christian nobleness. The many floral tributes were beautiful in color and fragrance.

Olaf Marion Akre was born September 8, 1866, in Minneapolis, Minn. He was confirmed June 5, 1921, at New Rockford, N. D., in the Bethlehem Lutheran church. For the past six months he has been in Minneapolis, where he had won the respect of all who knew him. His untimely passing was caused by pneumonia.

He was next to the oldest, and the first to go of a family of five daughters and four sons: Mrs. Arthur Savord of Hermansville, Beila of Sault Ste. Marie, Irene, Mildred and Thelma of Forman, N. D., Joseph of Waukegan, Wis., Alvin of Powers, and Leslie of Hermansville, who enjoys the blessings of a home through the kindness of the F. J. Viverey family. He was a member of the Modern Woodmen lodge. Interment was made in the Hermansville Community cemetery.

Delegates Named. The Hermansville quorum of 12 young men has been filled for delegation to the fifteenth annual Old Boys' Conference, to be held at Menominee, February 15, 16, 17.

Three young men from Powers will accompany the Hermansville delegation and will be under supervision of the Hermansville leaders, Hugh MacEachren and Conan Fisher.

Following is the list of local young men chosen for this honor: Harold Pipkorn, James Gribble, Rudolph Pigarraro, John Olson, Hector Yale, Olaf Larson, Otto Magnusson, Arthur Larson, Alger Saxo, America Vescolani, Robert Hanson and Carlton Schwartz.

Parent-Teacher Meeting. The P. T. A. held its regular monthly meeting Thursday afternoon with twenty-one members present. At this meeting the P. T. A. work was discussed, also the hot lunch committee reports, membership reports and milk reports were given.

Meyer township membership totals 108 paid members and many new prospective ones in sight.

It was also decided to present Miss Binny, public librarian of Menominee, at the evening meeting on February 27. She will speak

The six Holsteins of Carl Boim topped the small herd class with an average production of 16.85 pounds of butter fat and 476 of milk. In the medium sized herd division, Anderson Brothers' 13 Holsteins led with an average of 31.45 pounds of butter fat and 947 of milk. Hodgkins Brothers' 19 cows ranked highest in the large herd class with 23.86 pounds of butter fat and 742 pounds of milk.

TWO BOYS WIN CLASS HONORS

Leon Schram Valedictorian, Bob Snow Salutatorian at E. H. S.

Leon Schram and Robert Snow will be valedictorian and salutatorian, respectively, of the Escanaba high school Class of 1929. It was announced by Principal John A. Lemmer yesterday. It will be the first time in five years that two boys have won the coveted scholarship honors. In 1924 Gunnar Back and Lawrence Hartwig were chosen.

Schram in his three and one-half years in his school has earned 27 A's and one B. Snow has won 28 A's and two B's. Both boys have been prominent in extra-curricular activities. Schram has been a member of the football, basketball and track teams. His work at quarterback on the 1928 gridiron aggregation stamped him as an athlete of outstanding ability, and he has been consistently a first-rate performer in the other sports.

Snow is a cross-country runner of ability, being one of the members of the team which won the 1928 Upper Peninsula championship in that sport. He also is a member of the school's debating team.

The grades of the two boys include the semester just closed.

AMUSEMENTS

AT THE DELFT.

A sailors' dance hall, reminiscent of the days when the famous San Francisco Barbary Coast was the most talked of place on the Pacific Coast, is one of the many highlights in "Waterfront," the first National picture co-starring Dorothy Mackall and Jack Mulhall, which is now showing at the Delft Theatre.

The dance hall scenes are enhanced by more than 300 extras, all recruited from San Francisco's waterfront in order to gain the proper color for the action. The orchestra, consisting of two pianos, two trap drummers, four violins, and a saxophone, is one that plays nightly on a passenger steamer that sails between Los Angeles and San Francisco.

"Waterfront" was directed by William A. Selter from an original story by Gertrude Orr and Will Chappel. The supporting cast includes Frances Hamilton, Ben Hendricks, Knute Ericson, James Bradbury, Sr., Pat Harmon, Bill Bailey and others.

AT THE STRAND.

Columbia's "The Street of Illusion," which is to be the attraction of the Strand today, presents an unusual character study of a youth who becomes so egotistical that he drives friends and success from him. Students of psychology will find much food for thought in the production and the man or woman who is not getting the most out of life in the way of happiness and success may find the solution in "The Street of Illusion."

The plot revolves around the theatre showing the lives of players at work and at rest. The course of a Broadway play from the selection of the script through the casting, rehearsals, and staging to the opening night are graphically pictured.

Collecting 31 Billion Not an Ordinary Chore

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

Washington, N.E.A.—Representatives of the world powers will meet soon in Europe to decide how much can be squeezed out of the reparations—debts situation without killing the goose that lays the golden eggs.

Germany, of course, is the nation to do the paying, and the allied nations are the ones who are trying to find out just how much Germany can pay without wrecking herself. This figure, whatever it may be, must then be contrasted with the figure the allies have set as their goal, and the 2 must harmonize somehow.

The United States has no money in particular coming from Germany, but Owen D. Young and J. Pierpont Morgan will be there nevertheless, to protect the United States' interests. For the nations to whom Germany owes reparations are the nations which owe the United States billions in war debts. The more nations get out of Germany the more they will pay the United States—and, conversely, the less they get, the less they will pay.

Germany Must Prosper The most important factor which this new gathering of experts must bear in mind is the necessity of maintaining Germany as a going concern.

Next August Germany will have paid since the war a minimum total of $4,500,000,000. The exact figure hasn't been determined. The reparations commission has credited $2,500,000,000 on its books as paid by Germany prior to payments under the Dawes plan. This year's payments will bring the Dawes plan payments to $2,000,000,000.

The $2,500,000,000 was delivered in the period between the signing of the treaty of Versailles and the experts' meeting which produced the Dawes plan. It includes payments in cash and in kind, credit for government property in ceded territory and gross receipts from the French occupation of the Ruhr.

Germans, however, have estimated the value of her pre-war payments as high as $1,000,000,000. Counting in the loss of her colonies and other territory, along with other post-war losses to the allies not considered in connection with reparations, Dr. Max Sering, professor of political science at the University of Berlin, estimates that Germany has made a war compensation of $50,000,000,000.

Thirty-One Billion Dollars In 1921 the reparations commission set Germany's total reparations liability at $31,000,000,000. By military threat, it forced Germany to accept unconditionally a schedule of payments involving eventual issue of $31,000,000,000 worth of bonds at 5 per cent.

Germany set aside a treaty obligations budget and undertook to proceed. For lack of revenue her financial structure broke. As the government inflated currency to meet its budget, the mark went to pot and late in 1922 the French marched into the Ruhr. Soon the mark was entirely valueless and the French were learning that their occupation was costing more than they could squeeze from the coal mines and other natural re-than take a chance on collecting, under present agreements, over a period of 62 years. A dollar in hand is recognized to be far more valuable than a dollar payable 50 years hence—either a reparations dollar or a debts dollar.

Cash Settlement The reparations conference may do no more than fix the present "cash value" of reparations and provide for a great German bond issue, but it is expected to do so on the basis of being able to make a cash settlement of the same sort with us. It has been computed that the present "cash value" of Allied debts to us is about $5,000,000,000.

Commercializing German reparations into bonds would have the effect of putting the international investing public rather than the various government in the position of holding the bag. Germany would still be in debt. Meanwhile, if we were off, war debts would no longer be a source of international friction.

The problem of marketing the bonds may prove a difficult one; that's the reason why Morgan has been sent.

Whatever program the conference adopts is likely to have a profound effect on European history.

Novel Promotion Stunt for Play

A novel promotion scheme was carried out at the Escanaba high school to enliven interest in the all-school play, "A Pair of Sixes" which will be presented at the school auditorium on Feb. 12.

Pairs of cards, bearing six spots, were placed in some of the lockers. Those finding the cards were given free tickets to the show. The lucky students were James Ferguson, Harry Hoken, Charles Johnson, Evelyn Johnson, Bertha Olson and Lyle Smith. The lucky teacher was R. W. Nordling.

Just as the wedding ceremony in England was concluded, a bridegroom was arrested recently on the charge of being an army deserter, and half an hour later was sentenced to imprisonment for a week.

Following the example of Princess Mary many society women of London are returning to the side saddle, a new pattern having made the style much safer for riders.

Robert Tennis To Make African Tour

Robert L. Tennis, a former resident of Escanaba and Green Bay, is among a party of six that sailed from New York recently on the Hamburg-American liner New York for a Mediterranean cruise and a journey into Africa.

The Green Bay Press-Gazette said:

"The party includes former Governor Henry Carter Stuart, of Virginia, and Miss Elizabeth Stuart and Mr. and Mrs. Harry M. Naugle, of Canton, Ohio. Miss Stuart is a niece of Mrs. Woodrow Wilson. Mr. Naugle is a prominent steel manufacturer. All of the members of the party took the world cruise last winter on the Resolute.

Recently the Curtiss Airplane company established an $8,000,000 plant in this location and a few days ago the New York Central purchased a large tract for a shipping center. Buffalo has long since been built solidly to its line and is now going into the heart of this rural region."

Robert L. Tennis is a cousin of Mrs. J. E. Hanrahan of Escanaba. He formerly lived here and has many friends in this community.

MAY DROP BANK HOLDUP CHARGE

Wood-Holt Case Investigations Fail; To Demand Examination

Sturgis, Mich., Feb. 5—(P)—Possible collapse of the bank robbery charges against Ralph A. Wood and Cecil T. Holt, central figures with Wood's estranged wife in the complicated "Wood case", was admitted in justice court today by acting prosecutor James T. Sloan.

Asking Justice Charles L. Haner to postpone examination of the two men until February 11, the acting prosecutor declared investigations made so far by his office were of such a nature that a dismissal of the case without examination may be asked. Justice Haner granted the postponement and reduced the bonds of Wood and Holt from $50,000 each to $5,000, but intimated that he would not favor dismissal of the charges without examination.

"These men should be convicted or cleared," he said.

Counsel for Wood and Holt also made it plain that they would fight any attempt to dismiss the charges without examination. They would demand an examination, they said, that the records of their clients were cleared of the robbery charges. Bonds for both Wood and Holt are expected to be completed tomorrow.

May Investigate Slaying
Both Wood and Holt were represented by counsel at today's hearing, and the attorneys had with them three witnesses prepared to testify to the presence of the two men in Detroit on December 17, when the Sturgis National bank was held up and robbed of cash and securities said now to have aggregated $85,000. Sloan has been in Detroit recently investigating these alibi claims.

Coincident with this development came another move in the case in Detroit. There, before Circuit Judge Harry J. Dingeman, a petition was filed by Martin Hagerty, of Chicago, asking a one-man grand jury investigation into the killing of his brother, Ambrose L. Hagerty, in an ambush at Wood's real estate office in Wyandotte, a suburb of Detroit. The ambush was laid after Wood and Holt had informed police that Wood's wife had plotted to have him killed.

The petition asks that the one-man grand jury determine whether or not a crime was committed in the act and if so, that warrants be issued for the guilty party or parties on a charge of murder. It also asks that 14 law enforcement officers who participated in the Wyandotte affair, together with Wood and Holt and the former's business partner, Herbert L. Sullivan, be summoned as witnesses.

At the time of the shooting of Hagerty, January 9, it was said he was killed at Wood's doorstep by bullets fired by Wood as Hagerty lifted his arm to slay him. Three bullets taken from Hagerty's body after its exhumation from a Chicago grave last week now are held by Cook county, Illinois, authorities.

Bus Wreck Inquest Ends; No Decision

Norwalk, Ohio, Feb. 5—(P)—The coroner's inquest into the wreck of a Greyhound line bus and a Lake Shore Electric Railway interurban at Bellevue, January 22, in which 19 persons were killed, was concluded late today after three witnesses had testified that apparently most of the customary precautions had been taken by both the motorman and bus driver.

Coroner C. L. Bell said he would not render his official verdict until a transcript of the hearing is completed, but said he failed to find any evidence of criminal negligence.

Township Highway Proposal Approved

Lansing, Mich., Feb. 5—(P)—Road commissioners and boards of supervisors of 34 lower peninsula counties today endorsed the Covert act for building township roads in resolutions drafted at a conference with state highway officials.

The resolutions strongly support the present statute without amendments. Representative Fred C. Holberk, of the Arenac district, has introduced a measure to repeal the act. He said today he will continue his fight. He claims that only forty counties of the state favor the act, and that the action at the conference today did not represent state-wide approval.

Corporation Tax Minimum Hit by Solon's Proposal

Lansing, Mich., Feb. 5—(P)—A bill to equalize the state corporation tax by striking out the $50,000 maximum tax collectable from corporations under the present statute will be submitted soon in the legislature by Representatives Fred Wade of Allegan, he said today.

Wade today conferred with Emerson R. Boyles, deputy marshal general, regarding the constitutionality of his proposed measure. Boyles in a tentative opinion told the Allegan representative he believed it would comply with the constitution.

N. York Americans Beat Boston Bears

Boston, Feb. 5—(P)—The brilliant defensive hockey of the New York Americans proved much too much for the Boston Bruins again tonight and the Star Spangled aggregation won by a 1 to 0 score. Worters, the New York goalie, was the hero of the fray. He was called upon to make 51 stops and at least half of them appeared impossible ones.

The Americans scored by fooling the Bruins with a sudden shift in the second period. Broadbent and Connacher rushed and instead of trying their usual long shot, the latter worked his way inside of the Boston defensemen. Broadbent swept in and arrived in time to push his mate's pass right through Thompson, the Boston goalie.

State Briefs

Detroit—Ferry boat passengers attempting to bring liquor into the United States Sunday and Monday paid $374 customs inspectors announced today. Treasury department regulations demand $5 for each bottle of liquor smuggled in, and $2 for each bottle of beer.

Niles—Lee J. Brooks, 38, held in jail here on a charge of bigamy, admitted that he has three wives, according to police. He was identified by his first wife, who resides at Bowling Green, Ohio, and admitted having a wife at Haskins, Ohio. He married Mrs. Maude Mason, a widow, here last March.

Detroit—Two men held up Carl R. Smith, 29, and his companion, Miss Nella Tucker, 26, last night, after severely beating Smith. The couple was sitting in a parked car when the men approached and ordered them to get out of the car. Smith refused to obey and was hauled from the car, beaten unconscious and robbed of $30. Miss Tucker was forced to accompany the bandits in their car and was robbed of a small sum and thrown from the car.

Detroit—Charges of abandonment against Dr. Francis C. Naylor, former University of Michigan track man, brought by his wife, Mrs. Edna Papke Naylor, were dismissed by Judge Harry J. Dingeman today. It was brought out that Mrs. Naylor had agreed to separation and that her husband had paid a specific sum in carrying out his part of the agreement.

Niles—Mrs. Minnie Visel, 50 years old, was found hanging from a rafter in the attic of her home here today. The suicide was attributed to temporary mental derangement resulting from illness. She is survived by her husband, Charles Visel, and four daughters.

Lindbergh Links Up Two More Countries With Mail Service

Managua, Nicaragua, Feb. 5—(P)—Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh today tied two more Central American countries into the rapidly extending air mail service. He landed his amphibian plane here at 3:45 p. m., eastern standard time, after a flight which began at Belize, British Honduras, at 9:10 a. m. The first 125 miles took an hour and a half and after refueling he covered nearly 500 more miles.

In two days the aviator who first demonstrated the time saving of air travel in countries adjacent to the Caribbean has put in operation two-thirds of the new route from Miami to Panama, which hereafter is to have fortnightly service. Yesterday he visited Cuba before settling down for the night at Belize.

Despite the Colonel's efforts to make the present journey a purely business affair, he was greeted by crowds here fully as enthusiastic as those which feted him last night in Belize. Tomorrow he faces an 800-mile flight to Cristobal, Canal Zone, by way of Costa Rica.

Lady Mary Heath Passes Air Tests

New York, Feb. 5—(P)—Lady Mary Heath, British flier, took her examination for a transport license for the second time today and said the examiner at Curtiss Field she passed. She also took the examination for an engine and aircraft mechanic's license and said she was told she had passed that too.

Lady Heath took the transport examination last week but failed. She protested and said that she had failed only because she had not answered all the questions in the examination completely.

New Divorce Laws Urged at Lansing

Lansing, Mich., Feb. 5—(P)—A rigid law which would eliminate cruelty as ground for divorce, was proposed in the house today by Representative Charles F. Haight of Lansing. He offered a bill which would make adultery, desertion for seven years or commitment to a penal institution for at least a seven year term, the only grounds for absolute divorce.

DAWES NAMES REED
Washington, Feb. 5—(P)—Vice President Dawes today named Senator James A. Reed, of Missouri, who retires March 4, to read Washington's farewell address to the senate on Washington's birthday, February 22. The reading of this address is an annual custom.

CARNES GIVEN PRISON TERM

Former Church Treasurer Pleads Guilty to Embezzlement

Atlanta, Feb. 5—(P)—Clinton S. Carnes, who rose from ex-convict to a position of prominence as treasurer of the Southern Baptist Home Mission board and dined after nine years, leaving a shortage estimated at nearly a million dollars, pleaded guilty to embezzlement here today and was sentenced to from 5 to 7 years imprisonment.

His plea was accepted on recommendation of board officials, who said Carnes had turned over all his resources for restitution, that it would save the state a long, expensive trial and that justice would be served by the sentence because of his age. It was added that Carnes had agreed to aid in untangling the board's accounts, on which auditors have been working since he disappeared last summer.

Only one of the 20 indictments returned against him, that charging misappropriation of $50,000 figured in the proceedings. The state announced the others would be dismissed if the former layman did not seek a pardon or parole before the expiration of his minimum sentence.

It was as an obscure auditor that Carnes first became affiliated with the Home Mission board. A year later, in 1919, his business ability won for him the post of treasurer.

Books Short $953,000
Then he joined the Capital Avenue Baptist church, became chairman of the finance and building committee, was invited to membership in the club, and established a home in the fashionable Druid Hills section. He became the head of several private business enterprises here.

On August 15, last, he disappeared and ten days later a search was started in the belief he had met with foul play. Auditors soon were set to work on his books.

Coincident with the discovery of a shortage placed by the examiners at $953,000, it developed Carnes had served two prison sentences.

Receivers for his personal properties later reported Carnes had been the financial benefactor of two girls seeking careers in the motion pictures.

Michigan's Bank Deposits Climb

Lansing, Mich., Feb. 5—(P)—Deposits in state banks and trust companies have leaped from less than $40,000,000 to more than $31,000,000,000 in thirty years, according to a report submitted to Governor Green and the legislature today by Rudolph Reicher, state banking commissioner. Deposits reported last October were $1,407,988,566, as compared with $36,850,000 in 1899. Ten years ago deposits totaled $540,003,000.

The report declares this showing is "evidence of the confidence reposed in state banking institutions."

Oil Company Wants Stock Sales Order

Lansing, Mich., Feb. 5—(P)—The Central States Oil company today asked the state utilities commission for permission to issue $2,000,000 in capital stock. Hearing was set for Thursday.

The request is regarded as the first step toward a merger of independent producers in the Muskegon oil and gas field. Officers of the company are: president, Frank L. Maire, of Lima, Ohio; vice president, Walter I. Bean, Wilmette, Ill.; vice president, Charles H. Caswell, Lima, Ohio, and secretary-treasurer, Harold Smith, Lima, Ohio. Maire controls the majority stock.

The island of Trinidad, British West Indies, will soon have its first gas works.

Rangers Play Tie With Montreal 1-1

New York, Feb. 5—(P)—The New York Rangers and Montreal Maroons, rivals of last year's Stanley Cup finals, played to a 1 to 1 tie in their third game of the National Hockey League season here tonight.

The game started out as a fast and rough encounter but changed abruptly to a dull offensive contest in the last half. The first match penalty of the season was given to Bun Cook, Ranger left winger, during the height of the rough work in the second period. He also drew a $50 fine for slashing Nels Stewart.

Bill Cook took a pass from Leo Bourault in the first period to score the only goal the Rangers have tallied against the Maroons this season and Stewart passed to Jimmy Ward to even the count less than two minutes later.

Alabama Senator Attacks Use of Church Flags by Navy

Washington, Feb. 5—(P)—A proposal by Senator Hefflin, Democrat, Alabama, to prohibit the flying of a church pennant during services at sea above the American flag on United States warships precipitated a discussion in the senate today in which the Roman Catholic church and the Ku Klux Klan were mentioned.

The Alabamian, who a year ago assailed the flying of church pennants above the American flag, today offered an amendment to the cruiser construction bill to prohibit such action. The proposal was objected by Senator Bruce, a Maryland Democrat, as one inspired by the Klan.

The discussion gained headway and progressed to such a sharp interchange of words that Senator Moses of New Hampshire, who was presiding at the time, asked a clerk to read a rule of the senate prohibiting personal references of one senator to another.

The upshot of the affair was that the senate was forced to go on record by a roll call vote as to its views on the question.

Ten Vote for It.

Only ten senators voted for the proposal, among them Hale, of Maine, who had accepted the Hefflin amendment before the verbal storm began. He announced that for himself he did not consider the vote one of religion, as the navy had already decided to make the change. Numerous other senators, however, including Borah of Idaho, Reed of Pennsylvania, Hefflin, and Tydings of Maryland, called upon the senators to vote on the religious issue raised.

Just before the roll call was taken, Senator Tydings declared that "under our constitution every man has the right to make a damn fool of himself whenever he sees fit."

What Doctors Say

About the Laxative Habit

What do YOU do when the bowels need a little assistance? If you clear-up the condition with some laxative made with CASCARET, there is nothing better for the system—for the blood.

But if you don't KNOW the laxative you have learned to depend on is of harmless cascara, here's some truly valuable advice:

The bark of a tree called cascara is the most marvelous conditioner mankind has yet found. It stimulates the bowel's muscular action, but does NOT weaken. A violent laxative forms the laxative HABIT. You always need more on the morrow. With Cascara, you don't. Its gentle influence carries on sometimes for days. With less and less need of any aid, as time goes on.

So, the very next time you feel sluggish, take only a candy Cas-

President-Elect Silent on Cabinet Appointments

Miami Beach, Fla., Feb. 5—(P)—While the politicians and others were expending renewed energy today in the process of trying to dope out the next cabinet, President-elect Hoover closed his desk at his vacation headquarters at Belle Isle and took another try at fishing in Florida waters.

Accompanied by Mark Wood, of Lincoln, Neb., who once was prominent in the movement for the nomination of General John J. Pershing for president and T. C. Gregory of Palo Alto, Calif., Mr. Hoover boarded a finely equipped fishing craft and proceeded to a bank off Biscayne Bay, where he spent the afternoon.

While he may have been thinking about cabinet appointments as he waited between strikes, he continued to keep his thoughts to himself. Unquestionably he has settled in his own mind who are to fill several of the ten posts, but some of the places still are open and may remain so for several weeks.

Dinners Informal
For dinner tonight at the big white mansion on the man-made island near this place, the president-elect and Mrs. Hoover had as their guests Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Robbins, of Chicago; Gilchrist Stockton, of Jacksonville, Fla., who was associated with Mr. Hoover in Belgian relief work; Mr. Gregory, and Senator Smoot, of Utah, another House guest.

Dinners at what is known in this section as the pre-inaugural white house are wholly informal affairs. Most of the time, the president-elect wears dinner clothes, but there is no requirement that the guests do likewise. Dark coats and white trousers suffice for men guests, but the women, of course, wear dinner gowns.

Raw Sugar Price Hits Low Record

New York, Feb. 5—(P)—Raw sugar prices today broke to the lowest levels in four years in the New York market. Sales of the Cuban product, cost and freight included but duty unpaid, were made 1 31-32 cents a pound, bringing the duty paid price to around 3 34 cents a pound.

The decline of prices reflects the keen competition between producers in Cuba and Porto Rico, where the new crops are beginning to move more freely. There have been heavy offerings of the product from both countries in the last few days.

Sugar futures also sold at new low records for the season.

HOMES AND APARTMENTS.

ONE OF THE delightful features of modern American life is that one can always find something to worry about. Law enforcement, crime waves, the divorce rate, the younger generation, the rise of billion-dollar corporations—the possibilities are almost limitless.

Chief among these items during the last decade or more has been the steady growth of the apartment house.

A few generations ago the family that did not live in a single home, either owned or rented, was the exception. Those who lived in apartments were pitted; it was felt that there could be no normal life unless one had a whole house to oneself.

Now, however, the scales are swinging the other way. In some cities the majority of families live in apartments; and no town is so small that it does not have a fair-sized quota of apartment-dwellers.

All of this has proved an excellent subject for the worriers. The American home, we are told, is breaking up, patriotism is decaying and the old-time virtues generated by family life are disappearing. In a few more years we shall be a nation of fly-by-nights, and "parlor, bedroom and bath" will be our national motto.

There is no denying that there is something especially satisfying about living in your own home. A yard and a flower garden, no matter how small, give a sense of order and importance to one's life. The added privacy and isolation that a separate house give are often priceless.

But there is a good deal of hazy thinking about the general subject of home. For home is a state of mind as much as it is anything. It is an atmosphere—a blending of assorted moods and associations and aspirations—and it can be found as well in a three-room apartment as in a private house.

It doesn't take much, really, to make a home; and what it takes is just as available to the man who can't afford anything but a third-floor flat as to the rich man who can build a country mansion. Love, forbearance, tact, unselfishness—these are the chief ingredients.

Put together in the right manner they produce contentment, without which no home is anything but a sham. They provide a haven; a place where rest and happiness and inspiration can be found. Sometimes a pair of rooms fitted up for "light housekeeping" constitute as beautiful and enduring a home as any man could wish; and sometimes the costliest residence imaginable is no more deserving of being called a home than a railroad station.

If you have a genuine home—a place where love and deep satisfaction and contented peace are folded you—you don't need a great deal more. If you haven't, you needn't think you'll better yourself by moving.

The Vanderbilt family's weekly divorce suit was filed by Muriel Vanderbilt Church who says that Freddie failed to support her. A Vanderbilt should be able to think up better grounds than that.

WAITING FIVE DAYS.

One of the Upper Peninsula newspapers thinks the five-day wait for marriage licenses is "an unwarranted meddling of the state in affairs of the heart." It expresses the opinion that "not a bit of good was accomplished" by such legislation "while many couples resenting this intrusion into their love making, have gone into other states to have the marriage ceremony performed."

There may be occasions when this "love at first sight" and "marriage in an hour" manner of doing things is proper, justifiable, and quite the right thing to do. But for the most part, there is no particular reason why there should not be a delay of five days between the time of applying for a marriage license and the date of marriage.

What if a number of Michigan cities have ceased to be the Gretchen Green of their territories? Has any great and serious loss been incurred? Hardly! On the other hand, granting that the county clerk is observing the regulation, it prevents hasty marriages. It serves as a deterrent against the desires of youths to rush secretly into wedlock. It actually protects such young persons, and their parents who desire to give them an opportunity to properly prepare themselves for married life.

There are times of course, when county clerks or their assistants use means to keep the names of applicants out of newspapers, accepting a small cash consideration for the favor. On those occasions the purpose of the law is defeated. But generally speaking, the law operates with good results because it reacts against plans for hasty and secret marriages. We repeat that there may be occasions when a hurry-up marriage is proper and justifiable, and as a general thing that is not the rule.—Ironwood Globe.

When a girl breaks the engagement the man is entitled to the engagement ring, a Chicago judge rules. We trust the learned jurist told the fellow how to get it.

SIMPLIFIED ALPHABETS.

There is said to be a growing feeling in Japan that the time has come to adopt a new and simple alphabet. The Japanese have been interested in President Kemal's success in giving Turkey an improved alphabet. They feel that their own ever-increasing contact with Occidental nations make it imperative that they have a simpler writing system.

At present Japanese is written in a combination of Chinese ideographs and phonetic syllables peculiar to Japan. It requires knowledge of about 3,000 of these characters to read newspapers easily. This is naturally discouraging to general, popular literacy. China has already started simplifying her characters with a set of phonetic symbols. Ability to read is spreading rapidly because of this.

An editorial in the Japanese newspaper, the Osaka Mainichi, points out that the Occidental nations have enjoyed an advantage over Oriental peoples because of their simpler writing systems, making the diffusion of knowledge comparatively easy. This enthusiasm for simplified alphabets is likely to spread throughout the Orient. It should be a fine thing for East and West both.—Green Bay Press Gazette.

CHAPTER XXX

The sun had gone behind a bank of threatening clouds. Great gray clouds that came surging over the ocean. Fleeting for the fury of the wind. And the wind swept across the sea, and down into its depths. Churning, and whipping, and lashing the dark waves.

Servants came running from the house. Lisa, with her husband. Cher. And Hortense, who laundered Ashmore's clothes, and drew her bath, and combed her long black hair. And others, following them. With little black children scampering like frightened chickens. They shouted in panic.

Hollis jumped to his feet. And Hortense came running to Ashmore. She alone, of the servants, spoke English.

"It is another hurricane," she said. "They have given the storm signals. And now a messenger from town has come with word from the wireless station. The wind comes sweeping from the south, traveling like God, so fast."

There was a hurricane shelter built in the side of the mountain. It lay at the foot of the terraced gardens, a few steps from where they stood. The servants were carrying food and water there, and making frenzied preparations for a siege within the great stone chamber.

"Close all the shutters in the house!" ordered Hollis, "and barricade them firmly."

He hurried Ashmore along beside him.

"We'll stay in the house," he told her. "It's as firm as the rock of Gibraltar. These people are panic-stricken, after that last dreadful storm. But I'm sure there is no need of such elaborate precautions. They can huddle together in the shelter if they prefer. We'll be quite cozy and safe in the drawing room."

Ashmore clung to him horrified.

"What if it's like that last one?"

"It won't be," he reassured her. "Lightning never strikes twice in the same place."

The negroes were praying on their knees. In their hands they held all manner of charms, and flambeaux, to scare away the devil, and the Suck E'Yan, who rides on the wings of the wind, and sucks the blood of babies, and very old people, and pigs.

"Poor creatures," said Hollis. "No wonder they are frightened. You know the baby Liza has? It's her sister's child. The mother was found five days after the last storm—dead, in the ruins of her hut, with her body partly decomposed. And the child scarcely alive."

Ashmore shuddered.

"I'm scared to death," she confessed. "We read about how they burned hundreds of bodies here, because they couldn't bury them fast enough. Oh, Hollis, what if it's another hurricane like that!"

He lifted her easily in his arms, and ran toward the house. The windows had been barricaded, and the lamps lighted. Over them were huge hurricane shades.

"No need of being frightened," he told her. "No one on this plantation was hurt last time, and we're going to be safe enough now."

Ashmore looked about. The doors from the drawing-room were open, but there was not a human sound about. Only the wind, howling like a maniac through the branches of the great mangoes. Shrieking like a demon, as it swept down the mountain, and all about the lonely little house.

"Are we alone?" she asked, shivering.

"Quite alone," he told her. "And liable to be for several hours. All day, perhaps. And all night, too. Are you frightened?"

She shook her head miserably. Too miserable to speak.

"We were talking," he said, "when the storm came up, of love—and money. And I had asked a question that you did not answer."

Ashmore walked nervously up and down the room.

"Oh, please!" she begged. "I don't feel half so wicked as I did before that wild wind began to scream."

"Then you didn't really mean it?" he persisted.

"Oh, I don't know what I meant!" she cried. "I'm simply petrified. Hollis, I can't talk about good and evil. For heaven's sake, what are we going to do?"

He looked at her intently.

"That," he said very deliberately, "is entirely up to you, my dear."

WHEN MOTHER'S TIRED.

When Mother's tired—and women do get tired before the day is through—She's wise enough, I'm glad to know, To just sit down and let things go. She stops and rests, right then and there, Yes, Mother finds her favorite chair, And there she sits and gently rocks, And, while she's resting, darns the socks.

When Mother's tired—and every one gets tired before the day is done—I'm glad she's wise enough to quit, To stop and rest herself a bit. But here's the thing that just gets me, The thing I can't exactly see: The time she stops to rest is when She always does her darning then.

When Mother's tired—right after, say, The supper things are put away—She heaves a sigh and whispers, "Well, I guess I now can rest a spell." And then she gets her ball of yarn And finds a chair and starts to darn. No man has worked, who worked his best, As hard as women when they rest.

"Oh," she cried. "I hate you!"

"But I've ever so much money," he reminded her, "and you said—"

She interrupted him tearfully. "Oh, I don't care what I said. I was just talking. I didn't mean a single word. And I was wicked to say things like that."

She put her hands on his shoulders, and he saw that her eyes were crying. So that he thought of two shining lakes of misery, brimming with tears.

"I'm the worst coward in the world," she confessed. "And every time I think I might die, or get killed, two dreadful lines keep going over and over in my mind. Do you remember that poem of Kipling's about a wicked man named Tomlinson? Tomlinson died, and his soul went wandering through the spheres. And Tomlinson was scared to death. God wouldn't let him in heaven, and they wouldn't let him in hell, either, because the devil said he hadn't the soul of a louse. And, always, as that poor soul got shunted about, there was the same refrain to torment:

"And the sin that ye sin by two and two.

"Ye shall pay for one by one."

Suddenly she began to cry. Hollis put his arms around her, and comforted her. And when he felt her body throbbing, held her close, with her head on his chest, until her sobs ceased.

"I know it's morbid, and silly," she admitted. "But one's so brave about doing things with other people. Then, when you remember you'll have to pay for them all by yourself—it's—it's a d-different s-story."

"But you poor silly child," he murmured, "you've never done anything wrong. You've never sinned by two and two, that you must pay for one by one. . . . Have you, dear?"

He took her chin, and tilted her head back, searching her eyes.

"N—no," she said. "Not exactly. B—but I was just as much as p-proposing it."

He laughed at her, as one laughs at a child.

"Baby!" he accused. "And she told me she was a cold-blooded, hard-boiled, wicked woman!"

"Well, I'd like to be," she admitted. "Only I'm scared. There's no virtue in being a coward."

"No," he admitted, "I don't suppose there is. Still, it's a reasonable little safeguard—cowardice. I'm glad you're not brave, Orchid. If that's the way life goes."

He regarded her tenderly.

"I'm going to make you a cup of tea," he told her. "And find some of Lisa's bread and jam. And we're going to have a party all by ourselves. You know, you never told me about that letter your father wrote you. You started to our first evening together. Do you feel like talking about it now?"

She knew that he was changing the subject. Distracting her attention from the storm, to a recital of her father's philosophical bequest.

"I'd love to," she said. "It was a wonderful letter. But don't make tea, Hollis. It takes too long, and I don't want you to leave me alone."

"Come out in the kitchen then," he invited.

"No," she said. "Hortense swears it's haunted. You have a drink, if you want it."

She was glad that Hollis never tried to force liquor on her. Men were always trying to get girls to take a drink. And everybody said that prohibition stuff was so dreadful, whatever happened, it wasn't a girl's fault. Maybe rum in the tropics wasn't so dangerous. Just the same she was glad that Hollis never proposed they take a drink together.

"I don't want it," he said. "I couldn't kiss you if I had a drink. Rum smells worse than anything in the world. Didn't you know that?"

"No," she told him demurely. "I supposed they all smelled alike."

"Miss Innocence!" he approved.

She wondered if he meant it. If he really believed her to be so very innocent. And she thought how strange it was that just a simple little stenographer could twist a great big millionaire around her finger. But could she? Was Hollis Hart going to ask her to marry him? Or was it he, perhaps, who was going to do exactly as he chose with her.

The wind swept the mountain, and tore madly through the garden. There was a great crashing noise, and a gigantic wrenching. "It sounds as if a tree had been uprooted," Hollis told her. "Some of these trees are a great many centuries old. It would be cruel if they should die."

"What if that big mango fell across the house?" asked Ashmore.

Hollis smiled.

"Then," he said, "the sins we sinned by two and two, we should pay for one by one."

"Aren't you frightened?" she demanded.

"Not a bit. If we've a rendezvous with death—you and I—we aren't going to sidestep it, just because we're scared you know. If we're going to die in the arms of that ancient mango—we'll have had our little fun, won't we? Our little loves—our little dreams—you and I."

"Why, you've the same philosophy of life and death that Mona had!" she cried.

"But we're not going to talk about life and death," he reminded her. "You're going to tell me about that letter your father wrote."

He slipped a pillow behind her back, and drew his chair beside hers.

"Well," she said, "I told you about what a wonderful person daddy was. And how awfully clever. But I don't believe I told you about the dreams daddy had for me. You see, when he died, we thought at first that he hadn't left any money at all. But, by and by, we discovered that, besides his insurance, he had saved enough more to send me through college. Daddy didn't believe very much in marriage. That is, he had some awfully strange ideas about it. I don't know as I ought to tell you this Mr. Hart—but mother—well I guess I told you that she and daddy were about as mismatched as two people could be.

"Now, my mother's just the best woman that ever lived. Daddy used to say she was fearfully moral. Awfully, awfully virtuous, you know. I mean she is just as pure as any woman could be. But she had sort of old-fashioned ideas. About the relations of men and women. Particularly husbands and wives. Marriage, in her eyes, was the most respectable state in the world. And therefore to be desired above all things.

"I know mother loved daddy with all her heart. But I think she'd have married almost any one who had happened to ask her. And she'd have spent his money like water. And kept house as best she could. And been loyal and loving, and an exemplary wife according to her lights.

"It never occurred to mother to read or study, or become interested in the things that interested daddy. She thought a wife's share of marriage was to live with her husband, and cook his meals, and take care of him if he was sick. . . . But mother's the very salt of the earth. Hollis! She'd have died for daddy—and she'd die for me. . . . Only she failed him awfully in the big things of life, I think. Spiritually, I mean."

Ashmore paused.

"If I didn't tell you this," she explained, "daddy's letter would be quite meaningless. He wanted me, you see, to be another sort of woman."

Mr. Hart nodded.

"I see," he said. "Tell me about the letter, Orchid."

Your Health

BY DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN

Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine.

Children not infrequently swallow all sorts of unusual substances. Workers in factories occasionally are penetrated by flying portions of machinery; soldiers are hit by missiles of one type or another, and these may remain over long periods of time in the human body without causing any disturbance.

Eventually reactions may begin which result in death. Sometimes bullets or nails get into the body and may be carried along by the blood stream to the lungs or to the heart, and there be lodged temporarily without immediate effect, later setting up disturbances which may cause death.

The soldiers' heads.

Two French investigators examined by the use of the X-ray the heads of 50 soldiers who were suffering from mental disturbance, and found foreign bodies in the heads of thirty, in only one of whom there was any suspicion that a portion of a bullet might be within the skull.

In 19 cases the missiles were in the soft part of the bone near the eye, and in eight within the skull itself.

One soldier was troubled by a bullet found in his buttock, the bullet having entered through one shoulder while he was lying on the ground.

Examination of one of the soldiers with a piece of shell in the heart one year later indicated that the piece of metal had become anchored. None of the three men with pieces of shell in the heart had any idea of the presence of the foreign substance, nor did it seem to discommode them in any way.

Such investigations are an indication of the great resistance of the human body to disturbances of various sorts. Were it not for this fact, the amount of sickness and death would be far greater than it is.

DENTAL CLINIC IDEA SPREADS

Chicago Health Board Gives Results of Na- tional Survey

Chicago, Feb. 5.—"More good molar, less bad failures," is the principle behind a concerted movement of the Chicago Dental society and the city health department to secure for Chicago school children in 1929 the advantages of a vastly expanded dental clinic system. Dr. Arnold Kegal, health commissioner, has named a board of sixteen to assist him in formulating plans.

Investigations over a long period of time has demonstrated the connection between the number of cavities in a child's teeth and the number of failing grades on his report card. Statistics available in other large cities provide proof that close dental supervision and care of school children result in a materially improved academic record.

Reduces Number of Repeaters. Especially has it reduced the number of "repeaters," in such communities as Detroit, which expends $82,000 annually on such dental care; as Cleveland, where the bill is $100,000; Cincinnati, which pays $39,000; and Los Angeles, whose expense is $50,000 for the twelve months.

The "repeaters" and children who because of failing grades are compelled to remain another year in the same class, thus costing the city twice the annual expenditure for a child with passing grades. In Chicago the cost of schooling a child for one year is $81. Eight per cent of the pupils are repeaters—about 40,000 in all. Thus the cost to the city for the children who fail to make passing grades is $32,400,000 a year.

Would Save Four Times Cost. Such adequate dental care as is projected for Chicago reduced the repeaters in some cities as much as 50 to 60 per cent. On this basis, allowing even half that amount in Chicago, the saving to the city would be $810,000 a year, or more than four times as much as the estimated cost of the service.

Initial expense of the clinic, it is estimated, would be $63,000, and the yearly upkeep about $173,000. The plan comprehends the establishing of dental service under one head, to provide one dental nurse, one examining dentist and two operating dentists in every school district. Free dental service would be given only to children whose parents are unable to afford necessary care.

Present Service Inadequate. At present the board of education maintains one dental supervisor, two full-time dentists and four nurses, and the health department has eleven clinics for the children of the very poor. These are widely scattered and touch only the smallest fraction of the school system. The expenditure of the city at present is but $25,000 a year. In contrast, Chicago's smaller neighbor to the southeast, Gary, Ind., spends $25,000 in school dental service yearly.

Surveys conducted by the small staff now employed have revealed that 96 per cent of Chicago school children suffer from defective teeth, the number of cavities ranging from one to eighteen for each child.

TAHQUAMENON FALLS VISITED

Snow-Shoeing Camera- man Gets Some Unique Pictures

Sault Ste. Marie, Feb. 5.—The first successful winter photographic and newspaper trip to the famous Falls of the Tahquamenon ended Saturday night when a party of six left the Sault Wednesday morning returned.

Ideal weather, fair ice on the Tahquamenon River and excellent snow shoeing favored the party throughout the trip.

The party included two newspaper men, Ben East, Out-of-Doors editor for the Booth string of papers, and Clarence A. Paquin of the Evening News; three conservation department men, Irving Ladd, conservation officer; Ray Walker, state trapper of Strongs; Russell Williamson, state trapper on the Tahquamenon, and David R. Williams, Sault merchant.

Snowshoed 50 Miles

The trip to the Falls was made by the way of the Soo Junction, through to the river and then down the course of the stream to Emerson where the party took a stage to Ecker-

The party snowshoed approximately 50 miles, part of the trip being made on the ice of the river, and the rest of the trip, following near the banks.

Still and moving pictures were taken along the entire trip, the photographs of the upper and lower falls being the first newspaper pictures to be taken of the falls in winter time. One expedition that attempted to penetrate the falls last winter failed because of deep snows and bad weather.

Falls Are Beautiful

The river is frozen over most places from the Hunter Mills north of Soo Junction to within a mile of the upper falls. Swift currents then break the ice away and hurl it over the 40 foot sheer drop. The apparent stream of clear water at the upper falls is not more than 30 feet wide at this time of the year, the banks and sides being encrusted with huge icicles, tinted amber and blue. Big domes of crust and ice below the falls permitted the members of the party last week to approach within a few feet of the bottom of the drop.

The lower falls are more beautiful in the winter than the higher drop. Huge cakes of ice have lodged above the precipice increasing the intensity of the current and causing a quarter mile of foam before the water drops over its two ledges to the smooth water that runs from the lower falls to the mouth of the river.

Three Wolves Ahead

Above the falls a pack of three timber wolves kept a half day ahead of the party for two days the tracks of the three animals

Public approval, which has been responsible for the tremendous sales of Nash cars was one of the factors which prompted us to obtain the sales rights for Nash in the Escanaba Territory. Our sales of Nash cars have confirmed our judgment.

We do believe, however, that in the sale of Nash cars in Delta County the reputation of this organization for fair dealing and for conscientious discharge of our responsibilities as local Nash representatives, has contributed no small part.

The evidence of our interest in the cars we sell, and our ability to discharge our obligations to those who buy cars from us, is the organization which we have built up and maintain here in Escanaba to keep Nash cars in constant, good running order.

CLUB APPROVES PLAN FOR NEW 13-MONTH YEAR

Adoption of the much discussed 13-month calendar, a revision endorsed by leading organizations throughout the country, was presented for the consideration of the Manistique Chamber of Commerce Monday night in a communication from Walter Moon of the Inland Lime & Stone Co., this city.

The provisions of the proposed new calendar, which advocates 13 months of 28 days each, with all holidays falling on Monday, was gone over briefly, and the chamber with one dissenting vote went on record in favor of the change. The secretary of the club, C. C. Anderson, was instructed to invite Mr. Moon to appear before a future session of the chamber and explain more fully the details of the re-arranged yearly schedule of dates.

Matinee Expected to Prove Popular; Seats in Demand

Seats for "Home Sweet Home", Manistique band home talent play which will be presented at the Gero Theatre Thursday, found a ready demand when reservations were opened Monday night. The matinees will be at 4:15 and the evening performance at 8:15.

Final rehearsals of the production will take place today. The play, a three act comedy, with musical specialties, promises an abundance of laughs for lovers of home-made theatricals.

TWO STARS AT GERO

John Gilbert and Greta Garbo have been given another opportunity to enjoy close-up together in "A Woman of Affairs", which is at the Gero today.

The film is from "The Green Hat" by Michael Arlen, directed by Clarence Brown, who, it will be recalled, also guided the two stars through what might modestly be described as the rather more than less affectionate sequences of "Flesh and the Devil." Information is that the producers, after assuring themselves that the emotional temperature of the picture was not likely to fall very far below normal, decided that the occasion was worthy of an "all-star" case. So they picked Lewis Stone, Hobart Bosworth, Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., John Mack Brown and Dorothy Sebastian to take the more important roles.

The announced purpose of the studio was to make as nearly a perfect background as possible, of author, director and cast, for the two stars, whose success individually has been unusual, and whose appearance together in "Flesh and the Devil" and in "Love" disclosed the great interest in them not only on, but also off, the screen.

TIMELY TOPICS COVERED AT CHAMBER COMMERCE SESSION; INDUSTRIAL GROUP REPORTS

Some encouraging progress toward the reclamation of the idle Charcoal Iron Co. plant in this city was reported to the Chamber of Commerce Monday evening by James C. Wood, chairman of the club's industrial committee.

Mr. Wood and the members of his committee had been in conference with L. T. Kniskern of Newberry and other representatives of the company, with a view of working together to put the property back as one of the city's active industrial assets. The company was reported working on a plan which would reopen the portion of the plant devoted to the manufacture of charcoal iron, and offering the chemical plant as a desirable location for an industry which could utilize the steam, power and gas of the charcoal iron industry.

A crew of men has been working at the location for some time, taking out portions of machinery which cannot be utilized in a conversion of the plant, and the industrial committee was promised an inventory of the property to be used as definite information for supplying to prospective occupants.

A number of other timely matters relating to local progress were brought up at the regular Chamber of Commerce monthly session Monday.

It was reported that definite information would soon be available on the completion of the lake shore drive, a relocation of U. S. 2, and that work was expected to get under way this summer on the overhead bridge at the Soo Line crossing east of the city. W. L. Middlebrook, chairman of the board of supervisors and Mayor of the city, went to Lansing this week and expected to confer with road officials on this project.

Several matters relating to the tourist advertising program, including printing of booklets and conduct of the information bureau were discussed informally with members of the advertising committee present. Kitch-it-ki-ki, the Big Spring, which is to be taken over by the state as a state park, will be featured in advertising matter. The deed to the property, still lacking the signature of one of the owners who was in Europe, has not been delivered to the state as yet. When this is done, the state plans to build a new road over a shorter route and make other improvements.

Letters from C. B. Randall of the Inland Lime and Stone Co., and Fredrikson and Calvert of Old Deerfield were read by H. J. Neville, who recently went to Chicago for the Chamber of Commerce in the interest of the two local projects. He reported that the Old Deerfield promoters were working on a plan for financing their huge program of resort development, and that prospects were bright. His correspondence with the Inland officials.

AVIATION BRIEFS

The British coast guard service will be equipped with motor driven lifeboats in the near future, made especially for going to the aid of planes forced to land on the water. The new boat has been perfected as a safeguard against loss of life on the airlines now operating across the English Channel.

Equipped with a wireless and two large cabins built to accommodate about fifty persons, the boats will have a speed of 17 to 18 knots per hour. They will carry electric searchlights and line-throwing guns.

A recent bulletin issued by the United States department of commerce says: "Air transportation has now attained a definite place in the economic scheme of transportation. Cities actually connected by air routes at the close of the 1927-28 fiscal year numbered 88 and trading areas served contained 80 million people. By the close of the current fiscal year almost all of the larger cities and many of the smaller-sized communities will be connected by air routes and the smaller feeder lines will serve many outlying cities."

Applications for pilot's licenses showed striking increases during the past year. On July 30, 1928, applications were on file for more than 5,500 pilots and 5,000 mechanics. This is triple the number of the preceding year. On June 30 more than 4,700 applicants for plane licenses were on file, compared to 1,100 for the previous year.

While America's air-minded people are looking for advances in aviation, the British are not idle. England and her possessions are predicting a great year in aerial transportation. Chief of the attractions on the British Isles are the two new "blimps" now under construction—the R-100 and the R-101. Each will be mammoth affairs, carrying one hundred passengers. Extensive flights for the new craft are planned.

In the lighter-than-air field, the British airmen are already looking toward repeating their victory of last year in the Schneider cup races.

An aero exposition will be held in London this year, the first to be held in nine years.

After traveling 2,375,000 miles without an accident, John Grassie, of Aberdeen, Scotland, has just completed 55 years' service as locomotive engineer and fireman, and retired.

The tragic end of Forbidden Love

Was it an accident... or a jealous wife's revenge?

WITH a sigh of relief, Asherton sank back into the cab. At last he had eluded his wife. Now he and Marie Norton could enjoy their forbidden rendezvous.

Ahead of him the glare of headlights from Marie's roadster cut into the blackness. Silently, his cab followed. Soon they would be together at the deserted roadhouse. The very thought of it warmed his veins like wine.

Suddenly the glare of the road brightened as another car shot around the bend behind him. The shriek of its siren tore the night apart with its frenzy. "Some drunken fool," Asherton thought as the big sedan careened madly ahead of the cab.

Then his blood froze with horror. The big sedan was heading straight for the roadster. In another instant they had crashed!

THEATRES

AT THE RIALTO.

Lon Chaney has played many roles, sinister, mysterious and otherwise, but for the first time in his life he is now playing a policeman. The great character star is cast as a plainclothesman on the New York police force in his latest picture, "While the City Sleeps," a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production which is now showing at the Rialto theatre.

It is a vivid story of the "inside" of the New York police force, in which Chaney plays a detective who takes a fatherly interest in a young girl whose "boy friend" is associating with a dangerous band of crooks.

These gangsters lead the boy into a loft robbery, but the detective watching over him, saves him at the last minute and reforms him, so that the girl will have her lover. Which is a sacrifice on his part as he, too, deeply loves the girl.

Dramatic pursuit of crooks, a sensational battle of police and gangsters with machine guns, a running battle on the roofs of the city and the operation of the "shadow box" of the New York police are among the most dramatic highlights of the absorbing and powerful story.

Jack Conway, famous director of "Twelve Miles Out" and other noteworthy successes, directed the picture from an original story by A. P. Younger.

Anita Page, newcomer to the screen, who proved her worth as leading lady in "Telling the World," and who scored again in "Our Dancing Daughters," plays the heroine. The cast includes Wheeler Oakman, Carroll Nye, Mae Busch, Polly Moran, Lydia Yeamans Titus, Richard Carle, and others.

WILLIAM MUNRO, KNOWN HERE, PASSES AWAY

Pioneer of Mesaba Range Dies at Chisholm

The following story of the death of William Munro, father-in-law of Mrs. A. R. Munro, a sister of Mrs. Ole Peterson of this city, and known to many people in this vicinity, is contained in the Tribune-Herald of Chisholm, Minn.:

"William Munro, age 94, one of the Mesaba range pioneers, a man who figured prominently in public life in Superior, Wis., when that community was in its infancy, and a resident of Chisholm for the past sixteen years, passed away quietly at the residence of his son, Archie R. Munro at 11:20 p. m. Tuesday night following an illness of about five months' duration.

"Funeral services were held this morning when the direction of the Limestone Lodge, No. 9, I. O. O. F., with Rev. Will S. Emory officiating. The funeral party left at the conclusion of the services for Superior, where interment was made this afternoon.

"Mr. Munro was well known in Chisholm and though blind for the past sixteen years he made friends with all with whom he came in contact. He never sought sympathy, was aggressive and outspoken, a staunch Bryan Democrat in politics and a big hearted, wholesome character who easily made friends and held them.

"The deceased is survived by three sons, Wallace M. of Seattle, William R. of Superior; and A. R. Munro of Chisholm; two daughters-in-law, Mrs. Wallace Munro, Seattle, Mrs. A. R. Munro, C. Chisholm, her little daughter, Nehmer, and three grand-children, children of William R. Munro of Superior; two sisters, Flora Athey, of Park Falls, Wis.; Jennie Wilson of Green Bay, and one brother, Robert, of Green Bay.

Born in London

"William Munro was born July 25, 1844, seven miles from London, Ontario, Canada. He had school privileges both at Grand Rapids and Grand Haven, Mich., but from the age of twelve years largely provided for his own support. His first job was packing shingles in a sawmill, after which he gradually took other responsibilities until by the time he was 21 years of age he was thorough y familiar with sawmill operations. In 1865 in association with his brother he built a mill seven miles from Green Bay which they conducted for ten years, meanwhile acquiring other interests, dealing in real estate and operating a hotel and general store in addition to leasing an iron mine at Ishpeming, Mich.

"In 1880 Mr. Munro went to work as superintendent of a sawmill at Okonts Bay, later in Laney and still later at Barron, Wis., remaining at the last named point for two years. From there he went to Drummond, Wis., where he took a shingle contract for the summer and later took similar contracts at Eau Claire and Hayward. In 1886 Mr. Munro was called to Superior to become superintendent of a sawmill and he resided at Superior for five years, during this time becoming active in civic affairs and interested in reality.

"Shortly after this Mr. Munro went into partnership with Frank Hibbing who had been his valued employee at Green Bay and they started work in the Garden Lake Iron mine near Ely, Minn., but the venture did not succeed. In 1902, with Mr. Hibbing and eight other men, obtained possession of some land which is the present site of the village of Hibbing and formed an organization known as the Lake Superior Iron Mining company. This was a large enterprise and took time to develop. When other members of the company despaired of finding workable ore on the tract it was through Mr. Munro's faith and perseverance that its presence was finally demonstrated and further more he insisted that there was iron also at a certain point not far distant from where the company was operating. Although Mr. Hibbing did not share in Mr. Munro's opinion, he was induced to go with him and make the test which resulted in the discovery of the famous Hull mine. The company was forced by public financial stringency to sell their interest to the Rockefeller people. Mr. Munro received the sum of $20,000 for his one-ninth interest, which today would probably be worth $5,000,000.

"Following the closing out of this venture Mr. Munro served one year as purchasing agent for a manufacturing company of Superior. He then returned to the Range and the present site of Nahwaug. From there he went to where the village of old Mesaba stands as a prospector for the Niagara Mining company, but after eight weeks the company allowed its lease to lapse and Mr. Munro took it and with D. M. Filben made an agreement with Mr. Hill, who was financing the experiment to receive a two-third interest. He operated the mine from eighteen months and then sold his interest to Mr. Hill.

He went from there to Wyoming and to Goldfield, Nev., arriving there October 1, 1908. He prospected for gold and silver and with his son, the late Conn Munro, and two other men, took up six claims. Finding, however, that this hard life was dangerous affecting his eyesight, Mr. Munro decided to give up mining and accompanied by his son, Conn, came to Chisholm where he has been established ever since.

"During the greater part of his life Mr. Munro was recognized by his fellow citizens as a leader. He was a member of the First Village Council of Superior and of the first City Council of which he was president for one year. He was treasurer of the school board for two years, being the only incumbent of that office who ever served without giving bond. In 1904 he was the Populist party candidate for Congress and although defeated, made an excellent showing because of his personal popularity. He had been a student of political questions for many years and in 1896 stumped his congressional district in the interest of the late Hon. William Jennings Bryan.

BY CLAUDE A. JAGGER
(Associated Press Financial Writer)

New York, Feb. 5.—(P)—The stock market was inclined to feel somewhat feeble today, but recovered considerably during the session after general portions of good news. More than a score of issues closed at new high levels, although a liberal sprinkling wound up 1 to 10 points lower.

Takings of more than $15,000,000 in gold in London by New York bankers, the largest since the resumption of the flow of the yellow metal in this direction, was particularly stimulating, as it brings the total of the current movement up toward $30,000,000. Call money held at 7 per cent all day, but was available in the outside market at substantial concessions from the official rate. The tone of time money was again somewhat easier.

Aviation and copper led the upturn, responding to the air mail flight of Col. Lindbergh in Central America, another 3/4 to a cent increase in the domestic price of copper and an increase in the annual dividend rate of Anaconda copper from $6 to $7.

The uneven tone of the market was ascribed to uneasiness over the credit outlook and professional selling. Call money has held at higher levels this week than was anticipated. While the new gold shipments were greeted enthusiastically in many quarters, it also aroused fears of an increase in the Bank of England's discount rate, which would draw funds from the market, and might be followed by a higher rate here.

Trading was moderately quiet, total sales holding close to 4,000,000 shares for the second successive day.

Most of the coppers mounted 3 to 5 points, Anaconda, American Smelting and Howes Sound breaking into new high ground. Union Carbide, American Can, American & Foreign Power, Coca Cola, Chrysler, Timken Roller Bearing, and Vanadium made substantial gains.

Rails Yield Profits

Rails generally yielded to profit taking, Atchafalpa, Canadian Pacific, and New York Central, sagging 2 to 3 points. Chicago Northwestern shares again touched new highs.

The commodity markets were inclined to heaviness. Grains sold off in profit taking and cotton was dull and moved in a narrow range. Sugar broke sharply on pressure from Cuba and Porto Rico, where the new crops are beginning to move more freely. Crude rubber, however, jumped about 1/2 a cent a pound in response to strength of the London market.

Foreign exchanges were quiet, with Sterling holding around yesterday's levels.

CHICAGO GRAIN

Chicago, Feb. 5.—General selling out on the part of holders of future deliveries led to a break in all grain values today at the last. Reports of arrangements to bring liberal amounts of wheat to Chicago from Omaha and corn from Kansas City did much to start the selling movement, and to reveal that for at least the time being the markets here were without adequate support.

Closing quotations on wheat were weak, 1/4 to 2 1/2 cts. lower, 1 1/8 to 1 1/2 cts. off on oats, 1/4 to 1/2 cts. off on corn, and provisions varying from 1/2 cts. to a rise of 1/2 cts.

Lowest prices of the day were the rule at the finish in every one of the grain pits here. Before noon came that both wheat and corn at Missouri river markets were being sold for shipment to this city, each of the two cereals was displaying an upward trend here.

Efforts, however, to realize immediate profits on advances in both corn and wheat were largely responsible for pulling the price from under quotations.

An additional bearish factor was an announcement that a leading industry which has been buying corn here in good-sized quantities had suddenly withdrawn from the market. Besides, country offerings of corn to arrive here were of fair volume. Oats followed other grain, and reacted after an early lull.

CHICAGO BUTTER

Chicago, Feb. 5.—Butter today ruled barely steady.

Fresh butter: 98 score, 45 1/2; 92 score, 47 1/2; 88 score, 49 1/2; 84 score, 47 1/2; 80 score, 45 1/2; 76 score, 43 1/2; 72 score, 41 1/2; 68 score, 39 1/2; 64 score, 37 1/2; 60 score, 35 1/2; 56 score, 33 1/2; 52 score, 31 1/2; 48 score, 29 1/2; 44 score, 27 1/2; 40 score, 25 1/2; 36 score, 23 1/2; 32 score, 21 1/2; 28 score, 19 1/2; 24 score, 17 1/2; 20 score, 15 1/2; 16 score, 13 1/2; 12 score, 11 1/2; 8 score, 9 1/2; 4 score, 7 1/2; 0 score, 5 1/2.

New York Banks

Buy $15,700,000 in Gold From England

New York, Feb. 5.—(P)—New York banks and investment houses today purchased $15,700,000 in gold in London for shipment to the United States on the steamer Maritima and Paris. The Bank of England sold $5,000,000 of the total. Purchases on the current movement from England now total $28,700,000.

Record shipments of 600,000 tons of finished steel were made by the Republic Iron & Steel company last year from its Warren, Ohio plants.

New York, Feb. 5.—(P)—Sale of a New York Curb Exchange seat for $175,000 equalling the previous record high price, was announced today. The buyer was not disclosed. Arrangement has been made for sale of another seat at $171,000.

United States Steel corporation has stepped up its ingot production to about 88 per cent of capacity with $6 to $7 per cent a week and $5 per cent two weeks ago. Independents are reported at 83 per cent against slightly above 82 per cent the past two weeks.

Directors of Central Union Trust company, New York, have declared a 20 per cent stock dividend, increasing capital stock to $15,000,000. Par value of the stock will be reduced to $20 from $100, which, with the stock dividend, would give stockholders six shares for each one held.

Average price of crude oil in ten producing fields decreased last week to $1.68 a barrel from $1.69 the preceding week. Oil, Paint and Drug Reporters says. In the corresponding period last year the price was $1.47. Service station prices of gasoline dropped to 19.02 cents a gallon from 19.32 the preceding week. Last year it was 17.84 cents.

American Maracalibo company announces it has completed at 2930 feet an oil well flowing 3,000 barrels daily in the Hendricks pool, Winkler county, Texas. The company plans further development of its holdings in Texas and Oklahoma and drilling on its extensive acreage in Venezuela.

American Brass company, Boston, following increase in copper prices, have announced another increase of one-quarter of a cent a pound on brass and copper products, including seamless tubes, nickel silver and copper wire. Scrap was advanced one-eighth of a cent.

One of the greatest buying movements ever experienced in the National Metal exchange took place today, standard tin futures rising about one cent a pound on a turnover of 625 tons in sympathy with a price rise in London.

Judge Bell Will Not Be Opposed in Spring Primary

Judge Frank A. Bell is unopposed on any ticket for re-election to the office as judge of the twenty-fifth judicial circuit, and there will be no primary election on March 4, insofar as this office is concerned.

A communication from John S. Haggerty, secretary of state, says: "At the expiration of the time for filing nomination petitions of candidates in the twenty-fifth judicial district, we find that there is no opposition on any ticket, therefore you are notified that a primary election will not be held in your district on March 4, 1929."

Judge Bell's re-election to the office of judge of the twenty-fifth district, for which he has filed on the Republican ticket, is therefore assured at the April 7 election. Judge Bell was elected last November 6 to serve the unexpired term of the late Justice Richard C. Flannigan. His present term expires on January 1, 1930. His election this spring will be for the full six-year term from January 1, 1930.

SANDE STILL HAS HIS ROLL

Love of Racing Game Only Motive for His Comeback

BY HENRY L. FARRELL
NEA Service Sports Writer

When Earl Sande decided he would have to give up race riding or sacrifice his health he had to cast about for another profession. All his days had been spent around horses and he knew no other business. And it had been a good business for him.

He had been riding for years in the big money and he had saved plenty. If he couldn't ride any more and wanted to remain in the only game he knew about there were only two courses open. Either he would have to become a trainer for some owner or become an owner himself.

"What do you think about it?" he asked Sam Hildreth, trainer of Harry F. Sinclair's Rancocas stable, with which he had been affiliated in his most successful riding days. Hildreth also is his uncle by marriage.

"It's entirely up to you, kid," Hildreth told him. "You've got a nice lump of money but racing a stable is a rich man's game, a very rich man's game. If you want to go into it I'll help you but don't get in too deep. Figure out how much money you can afford to risk and go to it."

Wanted to Help But—

Sande knew every big owner in the country. And through them he could make fine connections with any stable in England or on the continent. All of the big American owners wanted to help him but they didn't want to have a part in putting him in the role of a sucker.

Sinclair showed his appreciation of the jockey's long and valiant service by selling him Nassak, a very good handicap horse, and John E. Madden told him he had first call on any horse in his stable. But Madden had a few words of advice.

"I don't want to sell you a horse until you assure me you are aware of the risk in this business," Madden said. "I don't want to see you lose all your money. And I'm afraid you'll be back riding some day around the leaky rocks."

Harry Payne Whitney and Joseph E. Widener, the two wealthiest and most influential men of the track, sounded the same warning:

"Be careful or you'll be back riding."

Back in the Saddle
And now, just a year after he left the saddle, he is back in training getting ready to ride again. He is training his Nassak for the big spring races and he has been offered the mount on Gifford A. Cochran's four-year-old son of Mr. O'War, Genie.

The conclusion might be drawn that he was just another one of the worldly wise young men who thought the horse game could be beaten and that after one year he was a sadder and wiser young man going where the smart fellows told him he would be going if he didn't look out—back to riding.

He's not going back to the saddle because he has to do it. This is known from an authority who knows him intimately.

Sande has done better than break even with his stable, his friends say. He has even made money on the first year. He took Sam Hildreth's advice not to get in too deep and he has given his personal attention to a very small string of good horses. He won several races in the east, including a couple of big handicaps.

He quit the riding game because he had to starve himself too much to keep down his weight. But when he quit he was surprised to find that his weight did not increase. He trained and exercised his own horses and found that he had lost 10 pounds and he decided to try riding again when he found that he did not get heavier over a year's time.

More Dough in It
Sande can still command good fees for riding. Even if he accepted only an occasional mount instead of booking a full program he could earn at least $10,000 a year and that's not measly money. And the young man does like to ride.

There are rules in some states that a man who owns horses cannot ride. But they are rules formulated as a safeguard against cases that are not related to Sande's and if he wants to ride again in the east it is almost certain that he can obtain a dispensation.

If he returns to the saddle in old-time form and is allowed to continue as an owner he will be a unique figure on the turf. No other such cases can be called to mind outside of the class in England known as the "gentleman riders" who ride their own mounts as amateurs in society races.

Commanding the profits of a winning owner's stable and the fees of a great jockey on assignments from other stables, Sande might beat the game that so few have beaten.

Schmeling Facing Suspension Unless He Fights O'Kelly

Boston, Feb. 5.—(P)—After denying New York reports that Max Schmeling, German heavyweight, had been given permission to cancel his Boston bout with Con O'Kelly on February 15, Boston Garden officials today threatened to appeal to boxing commissions generally to suspend him if he failed to fulfill his contract.

"There has been no official release of Schmeling's contract, and his fight with O'Kelly will come off on February 15 as scheduled," Huntington R. "Tack" Hardwick, chairman of the Boston Garden's executive committee, declared.

Both Hardwick and Eddie Mack, the Garden's boxing promoter, denied that their organization had entered into any kind of an agreement with the Madison Square Garden corporation regarding Schmeling's release, and both agreed to ask the Massachusetts boxing commission to suspend the German in this and every affiliated state if he failed to delay his return to Germany until after he had fought O'Kelly in this city.

Schmeling, according to reports, plans to sail from New York on February 15, the day on which he agreed to meet O'Kelly.

State College Puck Team Beats Civic Club Six

East Lansing, Feb. 5.—(P)—The Michigan State College hockey team gained practice for its engagement with the University of Michigan sextet here Friday, by polishing off the Battle Creek Civic and Recreation Club today, 4 to 1. The State team has shown much improvement since early in the season. The Crickets defeated the Spartans, 1 to 0, in January, and later played them to a 1 to 1 tie. Kennedy and Harper divided the scoring for State.

Barnyard Golfers Nearing Finals of National Tourney

St. Petersburg, Fla., Feb. 5.—(P)—The unerring co-ordination of eye and arm that makes for ringers is gradually reducing the field of aspirants for the world's championship in the ancient barnyard sport of tossing horseshoes. Tonight eight contestants remained in the running of the tenth annual tournament here.

Closing the second day's play, Jimmy Risk of Montpelier, Ind.; Clair Nunnemaker, Cleveland, O.; Burt Duryee, Wichita, Kas., and J. D. Hough, Urbana, Ill., were in the van with five victories and one loss each.

Closely following comes the champion, C. C. Davis, Columbus, O., who apparently has come out of the slump which cost him two games on Monday; H. Elmsom of Kenosha, Wis.; P. Mossman of Eldora, Iowa, and C. R. Thompson of Harvey, Ill., who have each won four games and lost two.

This about makes up the field for the championship. Tomorrow, the women's world's horseshoe pitching tournament will open with a small but select field of entrants. Mrs. Mame Francisco, Columbus, O., a former champion, is favored to regain possession of the title.

Soldier Will Try Old Rival Again

Detroit, Feb. 5.—(P)—Soldier Dombrowski, Selfridge Field featherweight, who has lost three fights to Mickey Goldberg of Detroit, will enter the ring with him again at Daceland here Saturday night, confident that he can turn the tables and gain the decision.

The military man, who heretofore has been a hand-to-hand fighter using his left to punish and his right only for a decoration, has recently learned to use both gloves effectively and claims this will make a big difference when he meets Goldberg the fourth time.

French Cue Champ Beaten by Jake, Jr.

New York, Feb. 5.—(P)—Young Jake Schaeffer, son of old Jake, the "wizard of billiards," had all his amazing ability tonight to defeat Felix Grange, French champion, in the Round Robin tournament for the world 18.2 ballline billiard title. Schaeffer won, 400 to 305.

GOODRICH WINS
Cleveland, Ohio, Feb. 5.—(P)—Jimmy Goodrich, of Buffalo, former lightweight champion, won an easy six round victory over Paul Pirone, young Cleveland welterweight here tonight. Pirone managed to hold his own in the first round. Goodrich won the rest of the way.

Expect Detroit Club to Get Cup Finals in America

Detroit, Feb. 5.—(P)—The Detroit News said today the Detroit tennis club is virtually certain of being awarded the American zone finals of the Davis Cup matches this year.

The information was disclosed, the news said, by J. G. Stevenson, president of the Detroit Lawn Tennis association when he returned from the Western Lawn Tennis association meeting at Chicago. According to the news, Stevenson said Detroit has the support of the western body and requires only the sanction of the U. S. Lawn Tennis association. He is to seek sanction when the association meets at Boston Saturday.

Boston Sunday Baseball Question Delays Action on National Schedule

New York, Feb. 5.—(P)—The annual schedule meeting of the National League today failed in its major purpose as the 1929 schedule failed of adoption.

A series of playing dates had been arranged calling for several Sunday games in Boston. A per-horse for playing these games has not been granted the Boston Braves so the schedule, instead of being ratified, was referred to President John A. Heydler for later action. If the Braves are permitted to play on Sundays in Boston the schedule will stand as drafted. If the authorities decline to permit such games the date will be rearranged by President Heydler.

The National League, as a result of today's meeting, has a vice president for the first time in its history. Barney Dreyfuss, president of the Pittsburgh club and senior member of the organization, was elected to the newly created honorary position. Mr. Dreyfuss became associated with the league in 1892 as head of the Louisville club.

Set Waiver Price.
The 1929 season will open Tuesday, April 16, five days later than last year, with New York playing at Philadelphia, Brooklyn at Boston, St. Louis at Cincinnati and Pittsburgh at Chicago. The season will close Sunday, October 6, one week later than the closing date in 1928.

As a result of formal action today the waiver price on first year players will be $7,500, regardless of the initial cost of the athlete involved. Formerly, if waivers were refused on a first year player, the club claiming him was obligated to pay the club holding him, the sum paid for him.

After the first year a player is subject to the waiver price paid for regulars, $4,000. An effort to increase the regular waiver price to $7,500 failed.

It was suggested that the change in first year waiver will have a tendency to standardize waiver prices and curb extravagance, as clubs will not be inclined to invest large sums in untried players of uncertain value when they may be forced to dispose of him for $7,500. The reduced price probably will result in more extended major league employment for youngsters who fail to demonstrate their worth at first glance.

Buy New Umpire.
An umpiring staff of 14, twelve active and two advisory, was announced. Robert D. Emslie and Henry (Hank) O'Day were retained in an advisory capacity and eleven of the twelve active callers of balls and strikes were on the staff last year. The addition is George L. Magerkurth, promoted from the Pacific Coast League.

Fighter Agrees to Obey Injunction Dempsey Has Ready

Miami Beach, Fla., Feb. 5.—(P)—W. L. (Young) Stribling announced tonight he will obey Jack Dempsey's injunction against flying an airplane or riding a motorcycle until after his fight with Jack Sharkey here February 27.

"I was going to get a lot of recreation out of my plane before the fight, but it looks like I'll have to use an automobile or 'Shank's horses' if I want to feel the breeze in my face," the Georgia fighter said. The injunction obtained yesterday by Dempsey's attorneys had not been served on Stribling tonight.

Stribling is doing road work nightly but will start his ring training at the Miami Beach Kennel club Friday. Sharkey plans to begin tomorrow and will go through his paces again Thursday, but will go to Tampa with Dempsey Friday to attend a fight there. Sharkey worked out in his ring today for news cameramen.

Johnny Buckley and "Pa" Stribling started consideration today of the list of referees submitted to them yesterday by Dempsey.

Possibility of radio broadcasting for the fight was eliminated today when W. F. Carey, vice president and treasurer of Madison Square Garden corporation, announced the fight would not be broadcast.

METHODISTS WIN.

Bloomington, Ind., Feb. 5.—(P)—Northwestern tonight held to a one point lead in the last minutes of play to beat Indiana, 31 to 30, in which both teams showed erratic team work. Northwestern led through most of the first half but the Hoosiers stared a rally at the end to lead, 15 to 14. They resumed their fast work in the second period, increasing their lead to 21 to 15 but the Wildcats, led by Gleichmann, who scored four from the floor, rallied to stay ahead at the final gun. Indiana played without Captain Wells, who is ineligible because of scholastic deficiencies.

BOY AMATEUR TALKS TO BYRD

Schoolboy in Virginia
Displays Genius As Operator

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
Falls Church, Va., (Nea)—At 9 o'clock each night Edward Redington's mother tells him to get off to bed, which means that the boy must desert his home-made wireless set by 10 at the latest. But Mrs. Redington allows her 15-year-old son to rise as early as he likes and 6 o'clock in the morning find him back with the dots and dashes.

It was thanks to her enforcement of Benjamin Franklin's sleeping system that Edward achieved fame by establishing two-way radio communication with the Byrd expedition in the Antarctic soon after 6 o'clock on a recent morning. Otherwise, one fears, Edward might have been up all night and sleeping soundly at the moment of his golden opportunity.

That was not the first time young Redington has picked up the base ship, City of New York. Some 17 or 18 times before, he says, he had received her signals. But it was the first chance he had to talk back.

It is fitting that one can report Edward to be an extraordinary young man. He is about six feet tall and slender, yet looks as young as he is. He was only 11 when radio began to appeal to his imagination and he constructed his own first crystal set.

He's an Artist, Too
Edward hasn't decided yet whether he wants to take up commercial radio or art as a life-time occupation. For Edward is also a painter of animal and bird life. There are woods near the Redington home and on Saturday afternoons he enters them to make pencil sketches of natural life.

Of course this doesn't interfere with the hours during which his station, WSKR, is functioning, these being from 6 to 10 at night and 6 to 7:30 in the morning.

Until radio and art began to take up too much time Edward was a first-class Boy Scout. It was in the official Boy Scout magazine that he first read of the possibilities of radio and began to build sets. His interest soon began to embrace the long-distance amateur field, but he wasn't able to do anything with dots and dashes until he became acquainted with other young men in the field and learned the elements.

Now Redington is a member of the American Radio Relay League. He received his license six months ago. It was in Q-S-T, the league's magazine, that he obtained most of the dope which enabled him to construct the set with which he has talked to the Byrd party. It was the issue for November, 1928, one might add for amateurs, which contained all the latest information for 1929 construction work. Edward supplemented that with numerous inquiries among his friends and considerable reading elsewhere.

Edward works in his bedroom, from which his 35-foot aerial is strung to a nearby tree. His antenna arrangement permits him to transmit and receive at the same time, allowing the operator to whom he is sending to break in and ask for a repeat if necessary.

School Stops Talk
He is trying each morning to reconnect with the Byrd operator.

"I might have had a chance to do a little 'rag chewin' with him as the amateurs call it, if I hadn't had to get ready for school," he says.

"After its regular scheduled communications every morning the ship sends out a general call for anyone who can answer and it was at that time that I talked with her operator. So many try to call him back these mornings that hardly anyone can break through.

"I gave him a report on his signals and asked if the base ship had any messages to transmit. He didn't have any message, but gave me a weather report and remarked that it was very cold down there."

Young Redington's call book shows he has talked with stations in Germany, Belgium, Australia, Portugal, Holland and Spain within a single week. The other evening he had ERVBD of Belgium on for two hours, delivering a message from a friend in Washington to a friend in Paris, testing out some equipment for another station and just plain "rag chewin'."

The boy's father is Paul G. Redington, assistant forester of the Department of Agriculture.

When your Children Cry
for It

There is hardly a household that hasn't heard of Castoria! At least five million homes are never without it. If there are children in your family, there's almost daily need of its comfort. And any night may find you very thankful there's a bottle in the house! Just a few drops, and that colic or constipation is relieved; or diarrhea checked. A vegetable product; a baby remedy meant for young folks. Castoria is about the only thing you have ever heard doctors advise giving to infants. Stronger medicines are dangerous to a tiny baby, however harmless they may be to grown-ups. Good old Castoria! Remember the name, and remember to buy it. It may spare you a sleepless, anxious night. It is always ready, always safe to use; in emergencies or for everyday ailments. Any hour of the day or night that Baby becomes fretful, or restless, Castoria was never more popular with mothers than it is today. Every druggist has it.

CURB TRADERS RUSHED BY OIL

Standard of Indiana in Big Demand in New York's Little Market

New York, Feb. 5.—(AP)—The five traders who specialize in the common stock of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana on the New York Curb market were buried under such an avalanche of orders in the stock today that an opening price for the day was not agreed upon until after 1 o'clock, when the trading session was more than half over.

The declaration of a 50 per cent stock dividend, which amounts to about $300,000,000, after the close of yesterday's market, brought an accumulation of buying orders totalling about 70,000 shares when the market opened. Virtually the only offers to sell were in odd lots, which made the process of arriving at an opening price extremely difficult. Finally, the price was set at $100.25, a rise of $4.25 a share. The stock subsequently sold as high as $102, but sold off to $99.12½ at the close. Nearly 130,000 shares changed hands during the session.

Price Reaches $108.
Much of the selling was said to have come from small traders who bought the stock when a struggle for control of the company in the open market was expected between representatives of John D. Rockefeller Jr. and Colonel Robert W. Stewart, whom Mr. Rockefeller is seeking to oust as chairman of the board at the stockholders' meeting March 7. The last day on which stock could be bought in New York in time to be recorded to be voted at the meeting was yesterday, as the books closed today.

The stock rose as high as $108 a share on the Chicago Curb market today, as many traders transferred their orders there during the confusion on the New York Curb. Also, some of the Chicago buying was believed to be for the March meeting, as stock bought there today could be transferred on the books in time for the meeting as the company's main office is in Chicago.

Locust Years

IN a very old book called "Joel" there is a story of "The Years That the Locust Hath Eaten"—a tragic story of the seasons in which men prepared the ground, planted precious seed, toiled during the growing season, but there was no harvest. Famine and pestilence stalked the land to multiply misery.

The locust no longer descends in sickening clouds to destroy our crops, but the ghost of the locust haunts the minds of many successful men, who after years of success and prosperity realize that they have nothing to show for their effort. Famine and pestilence have retreated before civilization but their shadows hover close to the declining years of men who failed to make provision for the long afternoon of life.

Nor is the tragedy lessened by the fact that these men meant well—they intended to begin "next year" when it would be easier to start on a larger scale. But the years slipped past quickly—and then it was too late.—(Apologies to Hayden Vanatter)
